Wedding Romance.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Kirk White, formerly surgical nurse at Fairmont State hospital, and Dr. J. Lane Evans, of Missouri, which was solemnized last October. Dr. Evans who was a student at the University of Pennsylvania Medical school, came here last summer to serve as an interne associated with Dr. C. M. Ramage, superintendent of the state institution. At this time Miss White was employed as surgical nurse. A warm friendship sprang up between the two which ripened into love and which culminated in their marriage previous to his leaving for the university to complete his course. Miss White is a daughter of George White, a prominent resident of Aurora, Preston county, and graduated from the Training school of the local institution and later spent a year in training at an army hospital in New York city. She was most efficient as a surgical nurse and the hospital officials regret exceedingly to give her up. She left this morning for her home at Aurora and will be joined there shortly by Dr. Evans and they will visit for a short time before going to Missouri where they will locate. Dr. Evans is a promising young physician and is well known and admired in this city. He graduated this month from the University of Pennsylvania medical school and is now at St. Louis where he is taking the examination before the state board of medical examiners. He will take charge of the practice of his father who is a prominent physician of Missouri and who will retire from active practice. Both are congratulated by a host of adoring friends.
